Report of School Committee

The loss of our East Whately school building by fire during the past year with the books and supplies it contained made it necessary to hire the old school building in South Deerfield and transport all of the scholars.

The extra expense made necessary by the change has made our school bills much larger than was expected at the beginning of the year.

Our new school building on the old Maplewood site is a long step in advance toward the physical and mental welfare of our scholars in that part of town and will help toward making self-respecting, intelligent citizens.

Superintendent's Report

Gentlemen of the School Committee.

I submit herewith my seventh annual report as superintendent of the public schools of Whately.

The destruction by fire of the East Whately schoolhouse last March necessitated finding suitable accommodations on short notice. The suggestion of using the rooms on the first floor of the town hail for the remainder of the year did not seem feasible. Then the use of the old schoolhouse at South Deerfield was suggested and this plan was adopted after learning that the building could be secured from the board of selectmen. This building having passed out of the control of the school committee made it necessary also to engage from the school committee the use of the sanitary accommodations of the new schoolhouse. This was generously extended by the committee and what appeared as a difficult problem was solved with little difficulty.

The children from this section did not suffer by the change. They had transportation from their homes directly to the school. They had the use of modern sanitary accommodations equipped with all devices to safeguard their health besides having the use of the playground apparatus. Recesses were arranged at different periods to avoid conflicting with the children of the other school. During the noon intermission, however, there was some competition in using the playground apparatus. For these conveniences, use of toilets, soap, paper towels and playground, the committee of Deerfield made a normal charge of $25.

If there was any inconvenience in the arrangements just mentioned it is more than compensated for by the satisfaction of the fine new building which was a second immediate consequence of the burning of the old schoolhouse. There was not an opportunity in the old school house to insist on habits of cleanliness on account of the limited water supply and lack of sanitary accommodations. The vast contrast between the old and the new ought to have its effect upon the children, in inspiring them to make their personal appearance correspond more closely with the neat and wholesome appointments of their new school home. Where this inspiration is not automatic a little persuasion will be appropriate. I personally hope, and expect, that a direct result of these modern accommodations will be a complete change in the personal appearance of all the pupils who have formerly been careless and unkempt. The building committee, school committee and community are to be congratulated on the possession of such a fine school plant.

The use of two rooms only for the remainder of the year was decided by you after the matter was presented by your superintendent. Opinion did not favor establishing East and Center School limits during the middle of the year. The Center School will eventually be relieved in the lower grades by the loss of those pupils who will find it more convenient to attend the East School. The primary grades are at present so much larger than the upper grades, that it will be necessary for the division to be made between the third and fourth grades. This will make a total of forty in the primary room and 32 in the intermediate and grammar room. Another year grades one and two should be combined in the primary room, grades three, four and five in the intermediate room, and grades six, seven, eight and ninth (if there be a ninth grade) in the grammar room. This will mean a third teacher for which provision should be made in making up the budget for next year.

In the Center School an epidemic of whooping cough interfered with the work of the last part of the fall term. In spite of this interruption very satisfactory progress has been made. The three new teachers employed in the center and west sections of the town are devoting themselves to their work and show a keen interest in the welfare of their schools.

Last June at a conference of superintendents at Harvard University, various committees submitted courses of study in the various subjects assigned them. These were discussed by the superintendents and will eventually find their way into all the schools of Massachusetts as a uniform program to be followed in the first six grades. The course in English has already been distributed.

In conclusion I wish to call your attention to the reports of the supervisors and to thank you for your support during the past year, expressing the hope that it may continue together with the cooperation of all those interested in the welfare of our schools.

Respectfully submitted,
CHESTER D. STILES
Superintendent.

Report of Supervisor of Drawing

Mr. Chester D. Stiles,

Supt. of Schools, Whately, Mass.

Dear Sir:—I hereby submit the following report on the work done in drawing in the public schools of Whately during the past year:

The outlines followed at the present time are the same as those used in the towns of Northfield, Lyden, Gill, Deerfield, Sunderland and Hatfield in Massachusetts and Hinsdale, N. H. These outlines are practically the same as those used in the city of Boston with the problems varied according to the locality of these schools.

The drawing work consists of nature study in the fall followed by design and just before Christmas construction work with applied design. In the midwinter term illustrative sketching, object drawing and action figure drawing; during the spring term more illustrative sketching is given with picture study and nature drawing.

In the picture study well-known pictures, such as those of Reynolds, Landseer, Rosa Bonheur, Vealsquez, Millet and Corot are taken up. The lower grades simply look at these pictures and tell about them in a story-telling way. The fourth and fifth grades study the life of the artist as well as his pictures; while the upper grades, reproduce the pictures and study them to learn the characteristic style of the artist.

The work given the most attention in the upper grades is the design and object drawing. Nature study including both of these. It is believed that the experience gained in taking up these branches will be of greater value to the child in after life than some of the other branches of art. The object drawing training the hand to obey the eye as well as making the child more observing. We often hear people express a regret that they are not able to make a sketch of some object they have seen or something they have in mind and can not explain clearly in words. In the object drawing we aim to give the pupil power to do this quickly and easily. The design work is also of great importance. It should enable the child to distinguish between good and bad design and instill in him a liking for things beautiful in design and color. This is accomplished only through the constant drill in making good designs and in keeping things before the child which are good in design and color.

In the lower grades the work is to give freedom in handling pencil, scissors and crayons, also to give drill in straight line drawing, to add to the child's graphic vocabulary and in the object drawing to aid him to see and draw large proportions correctly. This year just before Christmas a new form of construction or industrial work, was taken up using crepe paper rope. This involved the application of color combinations taught in design. Mats, boxes and baskets were made proving to be successful as well as interesting and instructive.

The regular teachers have been very helpful in carrying out the plans, and in some places a marked improvement over last year's work has been shown. The quality of work done in the East Whately grammar school has been raised and is now nearing that of the average grammar grades.

In closing, I would like to say that the work done in the Whately schools has on the whole been quite successful.

Respectfully submitted,

ASENATH H. LAUDERS,

Supervisor of Drawing.

Report of Supervisor of Music

"The aim of music education in the public schools is the development of culture through an acquisition of musical knowledge and skill. No other school subject correlates with so many phases of school work as does music. Therefore for the development of culture no single line of study is more important."

Now in what ways does music affect other school work? Take the aims of individual singing as an example.

The pupil is given an exercise of perhaps eight measures, which he must sing with no help from teacher or other pupil, therefore, calling into play all his independence of thinking. To think thus independently he is forced to use the closest application of mind. As he is taught from his first year that one of the main requirements is to sing his exercise correctly, his feeling for accuracy and truth is developed. Not only must he sing accurately, but rapidly, so all his senses must be wide awake that he may sing without hesitation. To perform an act of this kind satisfactorily before a group of classmates, requires a considerable degree of self-control—a characteristic so necessary to every individual.

Thus by teaching through music independence, concentration, habits of accuracy, alert thinking, and self-control, we strengthen all other school work and help to develop important characteristics in each child who comes into our public schools.

Respectfully submitted,

Belle T. Bullis,

Supervisor of music.
